Many Prominent People in England Writing to Washington.

GOVERNMENT ACTION ASKED

The Belief Is That the Conviction of the Imprisoned Woman Was Without Warrant of Law-General J. E. Mulford.

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 9.-(Special.)-Since congressional aid has been invoked in behalf of Mrs. Maybrick, many prominent people in England have written here, urging prompt action, and giving the strongest reasons Why that lady should be liberated. Several of these communications have been addressed to the Secretary of State. Mr. James L. Foulds, of Corstorphine, Edinburgh, writing under date of April 16th, to Mr. Olney, remarks: "You are perhaps not aware that chiefly through subscriptions raised by women of the United States a statement of Mrs. Maybrick's case was prepared by Messrs. Lumley & Lumley, solicitors, London, in 1892, for the opinion of the follow-Charles Russell, Queen's Counsel (now Lord Russell, of Killowen), and Lord-Chief-Justice of England; H. Bodkin Poland, Queen's Counsel; Fletcher Moulton, Queen's Counsel and member of ton, Queen's Counsel and member of Richmond, Va.; C. A. Willis, Richmond. ing eminent criminal counsel-viz.; Sir land, Queen's Counsel; Fietcher Moui-ton, Queen's Counsel and member of Parliament; Reginaid Smith, and Alex-ander McDougail. The first four gave a written opinion strongly in the conwhich demanded the grave consideration of a court of criminal appeal, if any such tribunal existed in England. Mr. Alexander McDougall gave a separate opinion, still more emphatic."

EFFORTS IN ENGLAND.

Since October, 1851, a succession.

lished at various times in England, all In favor of airs, anyone as innocence, and all from separate sources independent each of the other, Mr. Alexander Mc-Dougail published a book of 600 pages on the case in 180, and has since recently published the letters he addressed to the Home Secretary of the present govern-ment, An American Indy, Mrs. Heien Densmore, also published a small, but forcible volume. It is often said that Mrs. Maybrick has wealthy relatives, probably because her mother is a baroness, but this is incorrect. The Baroness is not wealthy, and Mr. Foulds says he is personally aware relation has spent any money on this pamphleteering in Mrs. Mayorick's case. It has been throughout purely a volun-tary and disinterested effort. The con-stant contention of nearly all in England and elsewhere who have taken an interest in Mrs. Naybrick's case is that the was wrongfully convicted; that the evidence at her trial was not only incomplete, but such as to suggest presumptive proof of her innocence, and of a con-spiracy to put a charge upon an innocent woman. Upon these grounds, and upon the irregularity, the bias, or the incom-petence of the Court and prior proceed-ings, the English people wish the wrong redressed. Within a fortnight from Mrs. Maybrick's condemnation, on August 7, 1889, petitions were voluntarily sent in from almost every part of the United Kingdom, signed by fully half a million citizens, praying for her release or

REASONABLE DOUBT.

A former Home Secretary of England has admitted the existence of a "reasouable doubt" whether murder had been committed, but added that the evidence led clearly to the conclusion that Mrs. Maybrick "had administered, or attempted to administer, arsenic to her husband with intent to murder him." High legal authorities in England contend that such a "decision" is unconstitend that such a "decision" is unconstitutional. Murder and attempt to murder are two separate crimes in the English calendar. Mrs. Maybrick was arraigned for murder only. If there be a reasonable doubt whether such murder was com-mitted, she is entitled to the benefit of that doubt. It is contended that it is not competent for the Houne Secretary to retry the case, or condemn a criminal.

Petitions have continued to pour in ever since, but neither of the Home Secretaries has yielded to the complaints, or youchsafed any reason for their re-

Such refusal, it is claimed, is wholly unconstitutional. Petitions have con-tinued to pour in since the decision speciful protests against it, and have also drawn attention to the new evidence also drawn attention to the new evidence since obtained, which effectually proves Mrs. Maybrick's innoceance.

It is not the function of the Home Office, it is claimed in England, or the Home Secretary, to dictate to the people what is justice, but rather to learn from and obey them. The United States Government has therefore every right to ack that constitutional heed to the will of the people in England be not of the people in England be not depted because exercised in behalf of an American woman. Mr. Foulds, who is an American woman. Mr. Foulds, who is an eminent lawyer, is one who has continuously worked, at his own cost of time and money, to effect Mrs. Maybrick's release, because it is his honest behigh that a grave miscarriage of justice has occurred in her case, and that she is absolutely innocent of either crime laid to ntiment in England is just as etrong in Mrs. Maybrick's favor as it is in this country, and it is the opinion that if Ambassador Bayard was forced to use his good offices with the Home Sect. Mrs. Maybrick would be released. GENERAL MULFORD.

GENERAL MULFORD.

Yesterday evening I had the pleasure of raccing in the Metropolitan Hotel General John E. Mulford, the Federal commissioner for the exchange of prisoners, who resided for a number of years after the war in Richmond, where he is well known and has many warm friends. The General is in excellent health, looks Iemarkably well, and except that his beard is quite gray, is unchanged. He is now residing in New York, where he is engaged in business, and is on his return from Florida, where he had been with from Florida, where he had been with Mrs. Mulford, who is an invalid. Gen-eral Mulford enquired especity about his old Richmond friends, the members of old Richmond friends, the members of the ambulance corps, and others. He has a warm pace in his heart for Rich-mond, and he asked particularly about Mr. John Enders, Colonel George Palmer, Captain Fabosck, Major Benjamin Nash, Ma Charles Simpson, Colonel Joseph E. Carrington, Justice John Crutchfield, Mr. Isaac Pavenport, Mr. John H. Bryant, and a large number of others, many of whom have long since passed over the fiver, and are resting under the shade and are resting under the shade

General Mulford stopped here to give to New York. He was giad to hear of the improvement and prosperity of Elemend, and expressed a strong desire to visit your city and renew old acquaintances in the near future. He will leave for New York on Monday.
